

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A management system and method integrates account information and trade information of multiple logistic bodies on an enterprise data platform. The logistic bodies register their basic information in the system; the system receives trade information among the enterprise and the logistic bodies, analyzes the correlations among them and generates a common registration code to integrate and simplify the accounting management of the enterprise when working with the logistic bodies.